

Floatinghome Biography

Floatinghome is the brain-child of Irish singer, Aidan. Based in Berlin and playing an indie-folk-rock music with hints of his native Ireland creeping into the rhythms, their sophomore album, "Dreams for Dreamers" is out now.

Their debut album, "Le Grand Discours" was released with Hazelwood Vinyl Plastics / Rough Trade under their previous guise (and singer's name!), "Aidan". They have performed extensively around Europe, including support slots with Villagers, Get Well Soon, Anaïs Mitchell and Wallis Bird. Floatinghome are taking over from where "Aidan" left off!

What the Press said about "Le Grand Discours"

"This could be the album of the springtime. We have grown familiar with the Irish guarantee of quality and it is clear here. Thank-you for this jewel." - Music in Belgium

"You send us travelling with this... magnificent first album" - 50 Degrées Nord, Arté TV

"An infinitely rich, moving and natural piece of folk art, which offers continuous surprises. A diamond debut." - Glitterhouse

"It's simply wonderful melancholic music orchestrated with a full band... Highly recommended! 6/6" - Stadt Magazine

For further information:

www.floatinghome.org